SEYMOUR DAILY REPUBLICAN

VOLUME XXXIV NO. 239 SEYMOUR, INDIANA, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1915 PRICE TWO CENTS

OFFICIAL ORDER IS RECEIVED BY CITY

Service Commission Gives Notice That Lower Gas Rates Become Effective October 1.

SCHEDULES MUST BE FILED

Consumers Will Get Benefit of Lower Rates When They Pay Bills in November.

Mayor Ross today received from the Indiana Public Service Commission a copy of the official order that the new gas rates in this city will be effective beginning October 1. The new rates were agreed upon at a recent conference between the council and the representatives of the Interstate Public Service Company. Judge James Clark, of the Commission, presided. The new rates are a reduction of twenty-five cents on each one thousand cubic feet of gas used.

The local office of the Interstate Public Service Company had not received a copy of the order this afternoon, but it is probable that the notice was sent to the Indianapolis office of the corporation and will be forwarded here within the next few days.

The new rates which go into effect October 1 mean that the consumers will get the benefit of them when they pay their November bills. The readings for September are now being taken. The next readings will be taken the middle of October and will be payable in November.

The full text of the order received by the city is as follows:

"The petition in this case asks for an adjustment of rates for electric lighting and for rates for artificial gas supplies to the people of Seymour, Indiana, by the electric and gas plants of the defendant in said city. A number of conferences have been held between the defendant company and the mayor and the council of said city in an effort to reach an agreement concerning said rates without a formal hearing. And, on the 14th day of September, 1915, such a conference was held in the city of Seymour with a member of this commission present. It was agreed between the defendant company and the mayor and the council of said city that a rate for gas of $1.10 per thousand cubic feet for the first five thousand cubic feet used by any one consumer through one meter in one month and $1.05 per thousand cubic feet for each additional one thousand feet used over and above five thousand by any consumer through one meter in one month, with a discount of ten cents per thousand cubic feet if the bill is paid within ten days of the date of the receipt thereof and the minimum charge of fifty cents per month, would be satisfactory, if approved by the public service commission.

"And the commission having had the said matter under consideration now approves said rate and authorizes the said Interstate Public Service Company to file its scheduled rates, tolls, and charges for artificial gas supplies to its consumers in the city of Seymour making the rate in accordance with the above provisions and said rates and minimum charge are now hereby approved and made effective on and after the first day of October, 1915.

"I, J. L. Reilly, secretary of the public service commission of Indiana, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true and complete copy of an order issued this, the seventeenth day of September, 1915, as appears of record in my office.

"J. L. Reilly, Secretary."

ACCOUNTANTS ARE COMPLETING TASK

Data Concerning Expenses and Receipts of Electric Light Company Collected.

STATEMENT TO COMMISSION

Report Will be Used as Basis for Adjusting Electric Rates for This City.

Accountants C. E. Smith and O. C. Herdrich, sent here by the Indiana Public Service Commission to compile statements relative to the receipts and operating expenses of the electrical department of the Interstate Public Service Company, expect to complete their work at the local office tomorrow and will secure further data at the Indianapolis office of the Company. Upon their reports will be based the new electric rates which are asked in the petition pending before the commission.

At the recent conference here when the gas rates were decided upon, Commissioner Clark, who presided, said that nothing could be done towards settling the dispute over the electric rates until the commission was informed as to the income and expenses of the company. The accountants have been working since the later part of last week. They expect to have their entire statement completed and ready to file within the next ten days or two weeks.

In order to find a correct basis upon which to fix the electric rates it is necessary to go over the ledger of the local company and list the payments of all consumers during a certain period. These are then totaled and afterward classified.

The report when completed will show the number of patrons who do not use more than the minimum amount each month and also those who use greater amounts. After this information is in the hands of the commission it will decide upon a fair and reasonable rate and will be in a position to settle points that might arise when the conference is held here. The city is asking for a

CLAIMS SHOW COST OF STREET WORK

Expense of Sweeping and Flushing Improved Sections from January 1 to This Time was $1,900.

FLUSHER ALSO COST $1,000

Repairs on Graveled Streets, Alleys and Sewers Cost $1,500—$1,500 in One Item.

In view of the general interest manifested in the street question a statement showing the amount of money that has been expended on improved and unimproved streets, sewers and alleys during the last two years has been compiled by classifying the claims filed with the council. An accurate record is kept of each bill paid and under the system adopted by the present council upon each bill is noted the fund upon which it is drawn. Because of this system a correct statement can be obtained by separating the bills paid for this work.

According to the report, a total of $4,000 was paid for sweeping the improved streets during the year 1914. At that time the work was done entirely by hand as the flusher was not purchased until this year.

The report shows that during 1914 a total of $6,200 was expended on the unimproved streets, alleys and sewers. Most of this sum was used for general repairs as the largest cost for sewerage work done during that period was $600 for the Fourth street sewer.

Since January 1, 1915, up to the time all street work stopped a total of $10,000 had been drawn upon the street funds. Of this amount $1,200 was paid for the lot and new storage building which probably ought to be divided equally between the two funds and the result would be the same as deducting it from the total amount expended, leaving $8,800 spent on all the streets, alleys and sewers.

The bills filed for sweeping and flushing the improved streets from the first of the present year up to this time aggregate $1,900. In addition to this $1,000 was paid for the flusher . That, however, was purchased by the council upon recommendation of the mayor as an economic device and it is clearly apparent that it has been thus far.

The bills paid for repairs on unimproved streets, alleys and sewers total $5,900. Of this amount $1,500 was paid for the repairs on the main sewer west of the city leaving $4,400 that was expended for current repairs.

The report was compiled because of the general discussion as to the cost of the sweeping the improved streets under the new system and the expense of maintaining the unimproved streets. The amounts used in arguments by persons who were disposed to discuss the question varied greatly and there seemed to be some dispute as to the appropriations made during the year for this work. The claims, however, to be paid from the street fund up to this time have all been filed and from them it is possible to get the accurate amount that has been expended.

DRAMATIC CLUB TO BEGIN WORK

New Organization Holds First Meeting and Formulates Plans for Winter Season.

MUCH INTEREST MANIFESTED

"Mary Jane's Pa" and "Every Woman" to be First Undertakings of the Amateur Thespians.

At the first regular meeting of the new dramatic club at the Conservatory of Music last evening, considerable interest was manifested in the plans for the fall and winter season.

Twenty-five were present at the meeting and signified their desire to assist in the activities of the new organization, and many others have promised to lend their assistance, and it is believed that the membership can be easily increased to forty or fifty.

The aim of the club is to effect an organization for the purpose of producing, from time to time during the winter season, various plays, sketches, etc., and to develop the talent of the individual members. Among those present last night were some of the most prominent amateur Thespians of the city, and there is little doubt that a company of unusual talent can be organized.

Arthur J. Beriault, of Indianapolis, instructor in dramatic art at the Conservatory, will have charge of the club, and plans to produce several well known numbers in the near future. Mr. Beriault has had considerable experience both on the professional stage and in coaching amateurs, and is also well known as a reader and impersonator. For the past several years he has coached the class plays given by the Seniors during commencement week and has also appeared in several recitals here.

Among the numbers which it has been decided to produce, and upon which work will be started at once, are "Mary Jane's Pa," the well known comedy, and "Every Woman," the great allegorical play. Mr. Beriault will bring the manuscripts of the two plays to the next meeting on Monday, September 27, and the assignment of roles and other preliminary work will be started at once.

The club will meet regularly each Monday evening, and membership is open to all who are interested in dramatic work. There are no membership nor tuition fees, and all who wish to join are welcome.

TREES AND MOVIES VOTED IN PRIMARY

This is Testimony Given Today in the Mayor Bell Election Conspiracy Trial.

INVESTIGATOR IS WITNESS

Dr. Moses C. Leeth, Former Deputy Coroner, is Strong Witness For Prosecution.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, September 21—Trees, movies and vacant lots were voted at the Democratic primaries which are being probed in the election conspiracy trial of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, according to evidence produced by the state today.

William B. Bruner, a special investigator, employed by the prosecutor's office for the past four months to investigate in the tenth precinct of the Fourth ward, testified he found from thirty-five to forty names on the polls sheets couples with addresses that could only refer to trees, movies and vacant lots.

Witnesses were then heard that additional fictitious names were given for certain homes in that precinct. This was new ground not definitely touched on by the state at any previous time.

The attorneys, court and jurors appeared in a pleasant frame of mind today. The last named had on their winter suits.

Before the primaries, Fred Barrett, Democratic county chairman, said to Dr. Moses C. Leeth that Edmund Lyons, one of the Democratic candidates for county treasurer, would be "put over no matter how the vote goes." This evidence was given today in the Bell trial by Leeth, who said he made such a statement before the Marion County grand jury.

Leeth has been a practicing physician for twenty years. He was formerly a deputy coroner and is a Democrat. A deputy prosecutor said that before Leeth would testify it was necessary to get an order from court.

"Lyons told me everything seemed fixed for him," he said. "The organization was back of him," said Dr. Leeth.

Dr. Leeth was asked what he meant by "organization." He said he always considered the Marion County organization "starting from Thomas Taggart, Mayor Bell, Bernard Korbley and down the line." The court struck this opinion from the record.

Leeth said Barrett told him Lyons had been a faithful worker and would be "put over."

WAR EXCITMENT IN THREE NATIONS

Bulgaria, Greek and Roumania Expected to Get in Conflict Before Winter Comes.

DEMONSTRATIONS ARE SEEN

Roumanians Believe Austrian Forces are Massed Near Border in Case of Activity.

Rome, Sept. 21—Three more nations, Bulgaria, Roumania and Greece may plunge in the world's war before the first snow falls in the Balkans.

The Roumanian capital is widely excited over rumors reaching there Sunday that large bodies of German troops were transported through Hungary last week and are concentrated within striking distance of both the Serbian and Roumania frontiers.

Despite the promise sent by the Austrian foreign office the Austrian Roumania border has not been reopened. No trains have been permitted to pass for more than a fortnight.

The Roumanians believe forces are being massed closed to their frontier for a demonstration in case Roumania shows sides of entering the war on the side of the allies.

The greatest military activity since the beginning at the war is reported at both Sofia and Athens. Bulgarian troops are marching through their capital daily. The Greek premier has been in daily conference with members of his cabinet and with leaders of the Greek war party.

BULGARIAN TROOPS ARE ORGANIZED ON BORDER

Report From Berlin Says Serbia is Preparing to Meet the Expected Bulgaria Invasion.

By United Press.

Berlin (via wireless to Sayville), Sept. 21—Bulgarian troops are concentrating along the Serbian frontier according to dispatches received here this afternoon.

Serbia, the reports asserted, has declared the Serb-Bulgaria frontier a closed war zone and is preparing to meet an expected Bulgarian invasion.

German troops as well as German artillery are massed along the Serbian boundary cooperating with the Austro-Hungarian according to press dispatches.

The prospects of combined Austro-German and Bulgarian action in the Balkans has aroused the greatest enthusiasm here.

PLAN TO TRAP RUSSIAN ARMY

Teutons Would Cut Off Last Line of Retreat.

REPORT PROGRESS IN MOVE

Three Essential Stumbling Blocks to Four Great Tasks Hindenburg Must Yet Accomplish In His Russian Campaign For Success.

London, Sept. 21.—Progress toward Dwinsk and progress in the encircling movement around Vilna is reported by the Germans.

Up to a late hour the Teutons had not yet succeeded in completelly surrounding the Russians by cutting their last line of retreat, the Vilna-Lidau, Barnowitsch road. However, Petrograd reports fighting on the section of that road between Biynakoni and Lidau which shows that the Germans have reached the road. The Russian statement says the German attacks there were repulsed.

This latter movement is designed to cut off the escape of the Russian troops, whose numerical strength is estimated by some at 500,000, and force it into open battle.

Four tasks remain to Field Marshal Von Hindenburg before he can call his campaign in western Russia successfully completed. They are the capture of the main Russian forces that defended the Vilna-Dwinsk, Petrograd railroad, forces estimated variously at 200,000 to 500,000 men.

The capture of Dwinsk, at this writing almost completely surrounded by Teutonic troops, but tenaciously defended by the Russians.

The capture of Minsk, southwest of Vilna, in order to hold the Brest-Litovsk-Moscow railroad, the third big line in western Russia and leading into the interior. Minsk is a junction of this line.

The capture of Riga, the big Russian port on the Baltic.

What might be termed a "postscript" to the chapter will be the driving out of the Russians from the strip of Galician territory they still hold, preparatory to an invasion of Bessarabia, with Odessa as the goal.

Plain and easy as these tasks appear on paper, and favorable as is the outlook for the Teutonic invaders in view of steady progress in the pursuit of each, the actual fulfillment even the most optimistic German or Austrian millitary critics agree, is still far off.

Upon the road to Von Hindenburg's finis lie three essential stumbling blocks. The Russian army, still intact, and orderly, its spirit according to all advices, unbroken, is yet to be counted on. Then as the Austro-Germans advance westward, to gain full control of the Vilna-Petrograd road and later of the Brest-Minsk-Orscha line, they will have to overcome natural difficulties in the form of swamps, marshes and forests such as they have not had to contend with thus far excepting at the Masurian lakes and the lakes are "easy" as compared with the ground of the future advances. The third great hampering object is the approach of the cold season.

There was heavy artillery firing all along the French front during most of the day. In the eastern Argonne the Germans exploded a mine near the French trenches. The French long range artillery was able to bombard the railroad at Thiancourt, and demolished one train which was about to leave the station.

GIRL KIDNAPPED BY AUTOIST

Victim Unable to Tell What Happened After Disappearance.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 21.—Authorities of two counties are investigating the mysterious disappearance of Miss Belle Fidler, twenty-one years old, a daughter of Andrew Fidler, a farmer, who was kidnapped, her parents declare, by a mysterious stranger in a large black automobile. The girl returned to her home near Conroe, eleven miles south of here, several hours later, covered with dust and evidently having walked a long distance. She was unable to tell what had happened to her.

The girl is said to have been ill and demented. Much feeling was aroused by her disappearance, and a posse of farmers is assisting the sheriffs of Tippecanoe and Montgomery counties in the search for the alleged kidnapper.

Miss Fidler was seized by the stranger when she walked into the yard at her home, her sister May seeing her get into the automobile. The machine dashed through Conroe and disappeared in the direction of Montgomery county. Nothing has been seen of the man since. He is described as being young and smooth faced.

J. J. HILL ASSERTS LOAN WOULD BE MADE

Declares Credit Is an Act of Necessity to U. S.

St. Paul, Sept. 21.—James J. Hill, in a strong statement just issued, asserts that the proposed loan to England and France would be made and that it would in no way encroach upon our neutrality..

"I find that men of different sympathies in this war and differing financial ideas approve heartily of this loan as they appreciate the reason why we should make it. On its face, it is a grant of considerable credit to Europe. In reality it is a new use, compelled by circumstances, of the cash and the credit of this country to avert disaster from our most important industries and to promote our own prosperity. Its greatest benefits are to come to the people of the United States.

"There is no doubt that the loan will be made to a total not less than $500,000,000. The whole amount of this credit will be used to pay for purchases of grain, cotton and provisions in this country. No part of it whatever will be used for munitions for war. And it is probable that such arrangements will be made as will largely insure the spending in each district of the money contributed in that district. In this way there cannot be the slightest disturbance in our domestic finances.

"One who looks only at the plain facts will see that the grant of this credit for the purpose stated is far less an accommodation to the countries that ask it than an act of necessity for the United States. It is part of the most most familiar business policy."

TO AID OUR TRADE IN LATIN AMERICA

M'Adoo Submits Suggestion to President For Adoption.

WOULD ESTABLISH BANKS.

Asserts Reserve Institutions Are Needed In Principal Cities—Favors Government Owned Steamship Lines and Asks Funds For Another Pan-American Conference Next Year.

Secretary McAdoo has transmitted to President Wilson his report of the proceedings and conclusions of the pan-American financial conference, held here last May. He summarized his suggestions for carrying on the work of the conference and improving the financial and commercial relations between the participating nations as follows:

"First.—That the twelve federal reserve banks establish promptly joint agencies in the leading cities of all the countries of Central and South America for the purpose of providing enlarged credit facilities.

"Second. — That the government of the United States provide promptly the necessary steamship facilities by subscribing the capital stock of a corporation organized for the purpose of owning and operating the necessary steamship lines.

"Third.—That the international high commission on uniformity of laws be granted an appropriation of $25,000 to enable it to carry on the important work it has undertaken and represent the United States in the meeting of the international high commission of all the Latin American republics.

"Fourth.—That a pan-American financial conference be held annually in Washington, and that congress authorize the president to extend invitations to the republics of Latin America to attend a financial conference in Washington in 1916, and that an appropriation of $50,000 be made for this conference."

To Their Advantage and Ours.

In support of his suggestion for the establishment of joint agencies of federal reserve banks in neighboring republics, Mr. McAdoo says that extension of the credit facilities of this nation in those countries will inure to "their and our advantage." He declared the plan advanced during the conference here for the amendment of the national bank act so that national banks could become stockholders in an independent bank which would do a foreign business, is inferior to that he now proposes for joint agencies of the reserve banks.

"The federal reserve banks," he argues, "comprise in their membership every national bank in the United States, as well as a number of leading state banks and trust companies. They constitute a financial organization of unequaled strength, and their operations in foreign countries will be for the common benefit of all banks composing the system. These agencies in foreign countries could, in addition to their banking business, render a great service to American business men and bankers by furnishing credit reports and general information about trade and finance in the various countries in which they operate."

The federal reserve act, Mr. McAdoo points out, authorizes the establishment of such agencies with the consent of the federal reserve board, and, while the banks cannot be compelled to take action along these lines, encouragement by the board may prompt them to it. Entrance into this field by the federal reserve banks, Mr. McAdoo says, will not prevent member banks from carrying on and enlarging the business they are now doing in foreign countries, but the capital and resources of the reserve banks utilized for the extension and promotion of commerce "would give them unrivaled financial power."

Must Have Steamships.

"The question of adequate steamship facilities," he says, "is fundamental and underlies every other question concerning our trade and future relationships with the Latin American republics. The quick and effective solution of this problem is for the government of the United States to put itself behind a shipping enterprise, so the necessary financial support to make it successful will be assured. We cannot expect private capital in this country to engage in this essential undertaking. It is too big at the outset for private capital."

$10,000,000 MISSING FROM BRITISH ARMY

Payrolls Apparently Mulched of Vast Amount.

New York, Sept. 21.—Discrepancies of a startling nature in the accounts of paymasters of the British army have just been discovered and a recent investigation disclosed the fact that sums of money reaching the amazing total of $10,000,000 are missing," said an American business man, who returned from England on the liner Rotterdam.

This man, who will not permit the use of his name, had exceptional opportunities to see the inner workings of the British war office.

"It is the belief of those who have investigated the matter," he continued, "that these sums never will be traced, and steps are being taken by the treasury department to straighten out at once the muddle of the financial arrangements at the front. Inquiries made some time ago by the pay department led to no more satisfactory result than the dismissal from the service of two paymasters for irregular conduct and the arrest of one on a charge of embezzling $9,000. But it is nevertheless true that more than $10,000,000 is missing.

"The pay department from the start of the war has been not only understaffed, but run by military officers without any business training or experience. The method of the department was evidently to pay any demands made on it without question or murmur. This method had, of course, all the advantages of simplicity and saved the officials a world of trouble for a time."

DUMBA WILL LEAVE SEPT. 28

No Reply Will Be Made to His Letter of Protest.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The reply of the state department to the letter of Ambassador Dumba, protesting against the action of the United States in asking the Austro-Hungarian government to recall him, will probably be only a bare acknowledgement of the receipt of his communication to Secretary Lansing. This was indicated in official quarters here.

Officials take the position that Dr. Dumba has achieved his chief purpose in securing the publication of his letter to Mr. Lansing and that it does not require any answer from this government. His defense of his own acts is regarded by officials as wholly beside the mark, while his charges against the state department are not regarded as meriting a reply.

Unofficial reports from New York that Dr. Dumba had engaged passage for Rotterdam on a vessel sailing Sept. 28, were noted with interest here.

Miss Mattie Empson, of Grassy Fork township, has entered Indiana University for the year. Last year she was one of the successful teachers at Vallonia.

Frankfort Man Finds Relief After Taking First Dose of Treatment.

Walter Spray of 1011 South Second street, Frankfort, Ind., for a long time suffered from disorders of the stomach, which caused him great pain.

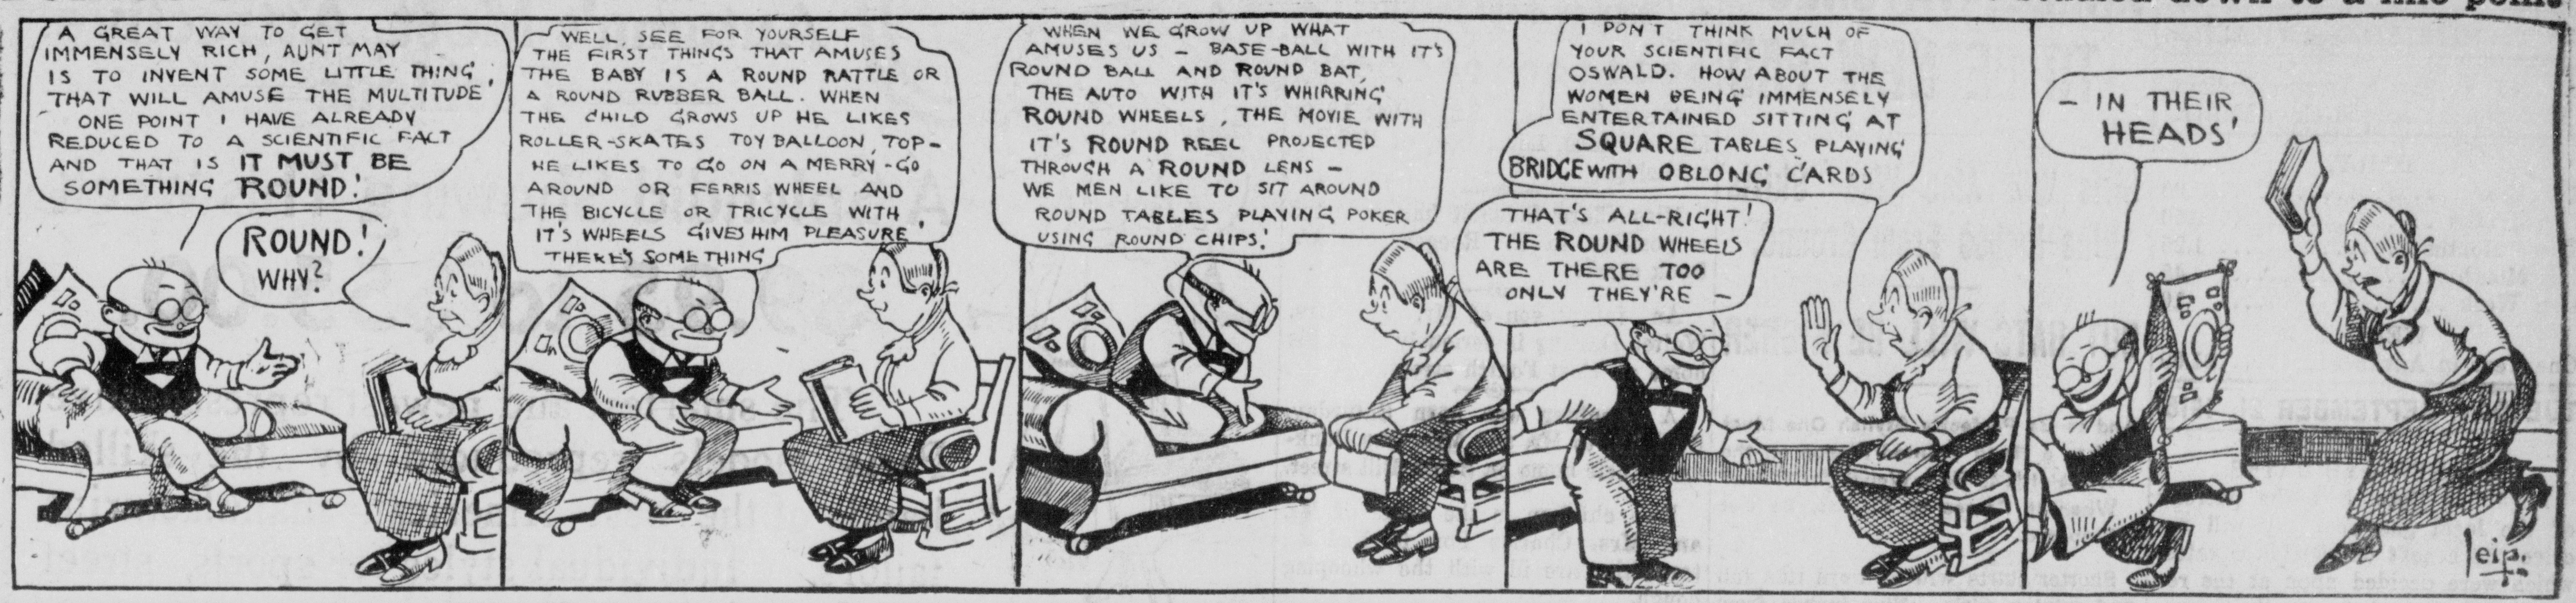
After long and tedious efforts to find relief he at last tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. The results, pleasing and beneficial, came right away. In telling of his experience he wrote:

"I took your treatment and will truly say that it did me more good than all the doctors did me for months. Before I took your medicine I suffered a great deal, but since I took the first dose I have not had a bad spell. I feel that it is even more than you claim."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee--if not satisfactory money will be returned.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS

Father has it studied down to a fine point



A GREAT WAY TO GET IMMENSELY RICH, AUNT MAY IS TO INVENT SOME LITTLE THING THAT WILL AMUSE THE MULTITUDE. ONE POINT I HAVE ALREADY REDUCED TO A SCIENTIFIC FACT AND THAT IS IT MUST BE SOMETHING ROUND!
ROUND! WHY?
WELL, SEE FOR YOURSELF THE FIRST THINGS THAT AMUSES THE BABY IS A ROUND RATTLE OR A ROUND RUBBER BALL. WHEN THE CHILD GROWS UP HE LIKES ROLLER-SKATES TOY BALLOON, TOP-HE LIKES TO GO ON A MERRY-GO AROUND OR FERRIS WHEEL AND THE BICYCLE OR TRICYCLE WITH IT'S WHEELS GIVES HIM PLEASURE THERE'S SOMETHING
WHEN WE GROW UP WHAT AMUSES US - BASE-BALL WITH IT'S ROUND BALL AND ROUND BAT, THE AUTO WITH IT'S WHIRRING ROUND WHEELS, THE MOVIE WITH IT'S ROUND REEL PROJECTED THROUGH A ROUND LENS - WE MEN LIKE TO SIT AROUND ROUND TABLES PLAYING POKER USING ROUND CHIPS!
I DON'T THINK MUCH OF YOUR SCIENTIFIC FACT OSWALD. HOW ABOUT THE WOMEN BEING IMMENSELY ENTERTAINED SITTING AT SQUARE TABLES PLAYING BRIDGE WITH OBLONG CARDS
THAT'S ALL-RIGHT! THE ROUND WHEELS ARE THERE TOO ONLY THEY'RE -

EBENEZER CHURCH BEING USED FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES

Classes Temporarily Held There Until New Building Can be Erected.

The Ebenezer church in Redding township is being used temporarily for school purposes. Classes will be conducted there until the decision regarding the new building is reached. Twenty-four pupils are enrolled.

The pupils now going to the temporary school were formerly enrolled at the Walnut Grove school building which was wrecked by the storm last July. Some time ago a petition was filed, asking that the building be relocated and for a new structure near Sulphur Springs, south of the old building. A remonstrance was filed to the petition and the matter was taken up informally with the county superintendent, J. E. Payne.

The matter could not be settled in time to build a new building for this term and arrangements were made Saturday to conduct classes in the church building. A number of residents interested met at the building, removed the benches and installed the desks so that classes could be called at the regular hour Monday morning.

A proposition is now presented to consolidate the Walnut Grove and the Conlogue schools and build a new school house near Ebenezer. No definite decision has been reached, but it is thought some action will be taken in the near future. Some of the pupils who would have gone to the Walnut Grove school this term are being hauled to the Rockford school. Most of those attending the temporary school at Ebenezer live in that vicinity.

The teachers who were appointed by Trustee B. G. Shannon for Redding township are:

OUR BIG DAY
Everybody Came to See Us.

In response to recent notices wherein Professor Munyon guaranteed to refund the money in every instance where his remedies fail to give satisfaction, people with all sorts of ailments called for all sorts of his remedies. The big demand, however, seems to be for his Paw-Paw Laxative Pills. They're certainly giving satisfaction. One benefited person tells another of their curative qualities, and so the demand increases. Professor Munyon wants us to continue to impress upon every person who suffers with stomach or liver ailments, and particularly all constipated people, to try Paw-Paw Laxative Pills. He says they correct indigestion and school the bowels to act every day in a natural way. If your complexion is bad, if you have dizzy spells, if you are bilious and if you have impure blood, get a bottle of these Pills, with the understanding that if you are not satisfied your money will be returned. No griping, no weakening effect, just a pleasant, natural movement every day. You get well almost unconsciously. Professor Munyon warns the public against the use of the old-fashioned cathartics, which scour and debilitate. If you have an ache or pain of any kind, you better come in and try one of Munyon's Remedies. Also don't forget that we are carrying his Witch Hazel Soap, the best toilet soap ever sold at 10 cents a cake.

THE NEW GAS RATES.

Beginning October 1 the patrons of the local gas company will receive the benefit of the lower rates, which were decided upon at the recent conference between the representatives of the Interstate Company and the Mayor and the council. Judge Clark, of the Indiana Public Service Commission, presided at the meeting, and, doubtless, his presence and advice has much to do with the amicable adjustment.

It is estimated that the new rates will save local consumers between $4,000 and $5,000 a year. In many instances the saving to the individual consumers will amount to considerable.

And, how much better it was for the company and the council to reach a satisfactory agreement through such a conference! A better rate would not have been secured if the case had been taken before the State Commission through the regular channels and the cost would have been considerable. In fact, the city would have spent a large part of what the consumers will save the first year if experts accountants had been engaged and the other many obligations had been incurred.

A WAR OF FINANCE.

The British prime minister recently stated in parliament that the outcome of the great conflict in Europe would finally resolve itself into a test as to which power could best conserve its resources. In other words, the struggle is nothing less than a war of finance. The cost of keeping the armies in the field is already exceeding the wildest estimations made a year ago and the daily expense of each nation engaged in increasing by leaps and bounds.

The great debts which these nations are making for themselves will retard their progress and advancement for scores of years. In negotiating the big loan for the allies the finance commissioners are endeavoring to float bonds that will not mature for fifty and a hundred years. Financiers have been unable to secure shorter terms as the nations know that they will not be able to take care of such debt for years to come. Great Britain, according to the advices, is proposing to saddle a heavy income tax upon her people. New means of taxation must also be devised to meet this new indebtedness. The present generation will not see it paid and the burden will be inherited by the second and even the third generations.

TO WAGE CAMPAIGN TO ADVERTISE ADVERTISING

Associated Ad. Clubs of World in Session at Indianapolis—Value of Publicity.

Indianapolis, Ind., September 21.—The executive committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, meeting here today, gave consideration to a mammoth campaign to advertise advertising—to show the public the economic value of advertising from the public's standpoint.

"Oddly enough, advertising has never been advertised to the public," evplained Carl Hunt, editor of Associated Advertising, the official publication. "One of the results is that at least a great many people have asked "Who pays for advertising?" and have even blamed advertising with increasing the cost of things.

"The facts are," said Hunt, "that advertising, by increasing the amount of business the advertiser is able to do so, has decreased the proportion of fixed business charges to the sales—provided of course, the advertising is wisely done."

The advertisers' campaign, which will run in advertising mediums of all kinds, will undertake the case.

Applications were accepted today from ad. clubs of Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit and Rochester, N. Y., for affiliation with the Associated Advertising Clubs. The A. A. C. of W. now has a membership of nearly 12,000 embracing practically every leading advertising man in this country and many in foreign countries.

ANKLE WATCHES TO BE NEW FAD

Girls Will Also Wear Skirts Nine Inches From Ground.

BUT HATS WILL BE HIGHER

And to Be Perfectly Stylish One Must Wear a Hand Painted Pigeon on the Wrist--It's to Be a Wonderful Winter When It Comes to Clothes, So Get Prepared.

Shorter skirts will be worn this fall and winter, girls. Nine inches from the ground they'll be and flaring wide at the bottom. High shoes laced in many ways will be in vogue, with ankle watches strapped around the shoe tops. Waists will be extremely tight and will button in front, and—well, there's so much of this let's proceed in orderly fashion.

Coats? Yes; they will be worn. They will date back to 1830, being very full, with big pockets, fur cuffs and circular collars. The collars will come up to the tip of the wearer's nose. These fashions were brought in by a score of buyers who arrived recently from France.

Decollete will be the same as usual, only more so, and mostly V shaped. Some of those gowns certainly do look very, very low! And here's another thing: Correct evening dress demands the butterfly cape. You know the kind—buttons or loops or something like that over the shoulders, so that when you spin around quickly you appear to be sprouting wings.

See Those Hats Shoot Up!

Hats are coming back into style again. You remember, they rather went out of fashion this year, and all the women were wearing no crowns, just sort o' half hats. But they will have crowns, brims and everything else this fall and winter, only the crowns will be much higher and the brims far smaller.

Violet will be the predominating color. Make a note of that, so no wily dressmaker will deceive you by trying to sell you a white evening gown. To be harmonious to the nth power on this violet color scheme it is rumored that violet colored cocktails may even become palatable.

Goodness! We almost forgot about the hand painted pigeons! One milliner brought back eleven beautiful birds, which he obtained from the Church of St. Francois in Lausanne, Switzerland. He says he is only going to keep the birds in his conservatory, but the report persists that the days of falcon carrying are to be revived and that the well gowned and fashionable woman must carry about a hand painted pigeon strapped to her wrist.

Macaws Will Get Jealous.

And these are some pigeons! Red, yellow, green and blue are a few of them; violet, yellow and red are others; some are brown and green, and still others are claret and blue. Furthermore, the color will not wash off in the rain.

Short, nine inch from the ground skirts, high shoes, with ankle watches; tight waists, high crowned and small brimmed hats, and a hand colored pigeon on the wrist! It will be a wonderful fall and winter, boys and girls, most wonderful!

COLLEGE COURSE FOR POLICE

Berkeley Force Requested to Make Study of Criminology.

Policemen of Berkeley, Cal., have been requested to attend the University of California. This, it is believed, is the first time any city in the world has made preparations to have a "college bred police department."

The course of study is in the relation of mental disease to criminology. The theory is that the policemen will be enabled to "size up" a man arrested for a crime and ascertain just what other offenses against the law he may have committed.

WORK OF REMODELING REDDINGTON CHURCH BEGUN

Addition Will be Built for the Accomodation of the Growing Sunday School.

Work of remodeling and enlarging the Reddington Christian church was started today and it is thought that the contract will be completed within the next two months. A large addition is to be built to the present structure in order to accomodate the growing Sunday School. The rooms will be arranged so they can be thrown into the main room at any time when more seating capacity is needed.

There are eight organized classes in the Sunday School at that church and arrangements have been made to provide separate rooms for all of them. A basement will be dug under the addition and also under the main building so a furnace can be installed later. The Ladies' Aid Society and the Sunday School will assume a large portion of the cost of the work.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

PYTHIAN SISTERS.

The members of the Pythian lodge were pleasantly entertained Monday evening during the social hour after the regular business had been disposed of, by the September entertainment committee. rate of seven cents per kilowatt.

After the report of the accountants is filed with the commission another conference will be held here when the rate question will be discussed. It is believed that settlement will be reached at that time. With one member of the utility commission present at the conference both the city and the company is informed as to how the commission would view any discussion were it taken before that body in the regular manner.

The value of the conferences is that both the city and the company are saved considerable money as the necessity for filing briefs and creating other expenses is avoided. When a settlement is once reached the commission issues the order the same as if the rates had been adjusted by that body in the usual way. The conferences also result in the new rates being ordered into effect sooner than if they were to be fixed before the commission after a hearing at Indianapolis.

REGISTRATION AT INDIANA MAY REACH 3000 MARK

Students Returning For Year Are Interested in New Gymnasium to be Erected Soon.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 21—All registration day records were broken today at the opening of the Indiana University. The exact figures were not available late this afternoon but Secretary John W. Cravens predicted that the total enrollment would reach the three thousand mark. Last year the total was near 2,800.

The centers of interest to the returning students were the prospects in football, which appear especially bright, and the $15,000 gymnasium for which the contract is to be let and work begun within the next two weeks.

Today saw the inauguration of the semester system into the college year, the term plan having been abandoned. Indiana was one of the last western universities to give up the term system. President Bryan said today that the movement for a university commons or university dining hall would be started during the year.

BAND OF GYPSIES KEPT ON MOVE BY THE POLICE

Officer Wallace Informs Leader that His Followers Are Not Wanted in This City.

A band of Gypsies arrived in the city this afternoon and drove up on East Third street, where they were preparing to leave their wagons. The police were notified that the band was in the city and Officer Wallace reached the travelers about the time they were getting ready to begin their begging campaign.

The police have learned from past experience that the average band of Gypsies is a nuisance to the city and frequently many small articles are stolen while they are in the city. Consequently, Officer Wallace told the leader that his followers were not wanted here and without further parleying they climbed back in their wagons and started on their way.

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The real secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful," says a well-known hygienist, "is to keep the liver and bowels normally active. Without these requisites, poisonous waste products remain in the system, polluting the blood and lodging in various organs, tissues, joints. One becomes flabby, obese, nervous, mentally sluggish, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow of face.

"But to get liver and bowels working as they ought, without producing evil after-effects, has been the problem. Fortunately, there is a prescription of unquestioned merit, which may now be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient derived from the humble May apple, or its root, which has been called 'vegetable calomel' because of its effectiveness—though of course it is not to be classed with the real calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming constituent in 'sentanel' tablets—that's the name—and their use is not followed by weakness or exhaustion. On the contrary, these harmless vegetable tablets tend to impart tone and elasticity to the relaxed intestinal wall. Sentanel tablets, which may be procured from any druggist—a dime's worth will do—will prove a revelation to any constipated, liver-troubled person."

Chief Cause of Pimples, Blotches, Sallow Skin

(Messenger of Health.)

Unsightly eruptions, pimples, boils, blotches, sallow or muddy skin, usually are due to a sluggish liver, a constipated bowel—and a polluted blood stream as a consequence. How foolish in such cases to resort to outward applications, which can never have natural, permanent results. If more people only knew it, there is a very simple remedy, to be found in any drug store, which is as effective as it is harmless and quick acting. It is an old formula, long recognized by the medical profession, which has been put in tablet form, and at such small cost no one need now be deprived of its wonderful benefits.

"Sentanel tablets"—that's the name—are entirely vegetable and there's no habit-forming ingredient. You need only get about a dime's worth, and swallow one at bedtime to realize there's nothing else quite so good for the purpose. The action in the morning is so easy, so soothing, and instead of a weakening after-effect, you feel truly refreshed and invigorated. Sentanel tablets are not only the finest remedy known for constipation and torpid liver, but offer the sanest, most sensible treatment for complexion difficulties of the character mentioned.

Great Demand for New Constipation Remedy

They say that the advent of the "sentanel tablet" as a vegetable substitute for calomel has resulted in an extraordinary demand for this remarkable product. It seems to have made a hit particularly with those afflicted with chronic constipation, who were quick to recognize its advantages over calomel and the usual laxatives.

Sentanel tablets, aside from their efficacy, doubtless owe their success largely to a tendency to aid in bringing about natural functioning—instead of encouraging the "cathartic habit." Also, instead of injuring the membraneous lining of the organs involved, they exert a healing influence. Instead of weakening, they add tone to the intestinal wall. And they work so easily and gently, they are of course preferred on this account to the violently acting purgatives. Their inexpensiveness is another reason for the popularity of sentanel tablets. One need procure only a dime's worth, and take one tablet upon retiring, to be convinced that the ideal remedy for constipation, torpid liver, and their many evil consequences, has finally been found.—Druggists Review.

J. D. JR., EATS WITH MINERS

Hobnobs With Employes at Colorado Mine.

VISITS HIS MINING CAMPS

Oil Magnate Has No Comment to Make When Shown Ludlow—Declares Miner's House Not Inviting—Urges Gardens.

Denver, Sept. 21.—Without his destination being known John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who had traveled all the way from New York, stepped from an ordinary Pullman sleeping car on a Santa Fe train in Trinidad.

Except for the report that the J. J. Hill interests were seeking to acquire the holdings of the Colorado Fuel company, Mr. Rockefeller had little to say to any one, but mine employes. If there is anything in this report I know nothing about it ,he said. "It was a pretty good guess on the part of some reporter. Hill is one man who might have money enough to buy the company, if he were so inclined."

The young millionaire was keeping his promise made to Mother Jones last winter to visit Colorado and see conditions for himself, as they really exist. He immeditely began an investigation of the various camps in the southern field, controlled by the Colorado Fuel and Iron compasy.

The party first visited the Ludlow. The position of the strikers and militia and their movements during the battle, were pointed out and explained. Mr. Rockefeller listened without comment.

From Ludlow the party went to Berwind where the capitalist left his car and went among the laborers.

He sat down and ate dinner with coal diggers at the camp boarding house at Berwind, just to see what kind of food was served to the men. Later he talked to a dust begrimed mine foreman. He did not introduce himself to this man, nor did the miners at the boarding house know who was eating at same table with them.

Later on, however, Mr. Rockefeller did break his resolve to learn things incognito. It was at Berwind where he sat for half an hour on the porch of a tumbledown shack of the Berwine Coal Mining company and talked with Dan Morelli, representative of the local miners in this Colorado Iron and Fuel company camp.

"Look here, Mr. Morelli," said Mr. Rockefeller, "I want to have a heart to heart talk to you. Just forget that I am a wealthy man and talk frankly to me as you would to any of your brother miners."

Mr. Morelli told Mr. Rockefeller that improvements might be made in the homes provided for the miners by the company.

"All right," said Mr. Rockefeller, "let's go and see some of these homes. I have come west to see for myself if the reports of conditions which my managers have been sending me are absolutely true."

Morelli and Mr. Rockefeller then visited a dozen homes of the miners in the little settlement in Berwind. The first place visited was one of the oldest houses in the camp.

"This place does not look very inviting," said Mr. Rockefeller. "Why cannot we have better houses in place of such as this?" he asked of President Wellborn, who had joined the party at that moment.

"How much rent do the men pay for a house like this? asked Mr. Rockefeller.

"Two dollars for each room a month," said Morelli. "There are four rooms in this house and that makes $8 a month."

"Well," asked Mr. Rockefeller, "do you think it is worth it?"

Mr. Rockefeller then pointed to the yard. "Why cannot these people have some good gardens here?" he asked. Mr. Morelli explained that no one seemed to take an interest in gardens "Well," he said, "I think it would cut down their expenses if these women would devote some time to gardens. I think the company should provide them with a little garden about each house, with a supply of seed for staple vegetables."

PAVE WAY FOR BIG LOAN

Everything Said to Be Arranged For Anglo-French Credit.

New York, Sept. 21.—Although the questions on which the amount of the Anglo-French credit depends are not yet entirely settled, the report was current in the financial district that, after a meeting and discussion by the Anglo-French mission and American interest, the statement may be made that everything has been arranged. The meeting appeared to be satisfactory judging from reports.

The one point on which there is still doubt is over the matter of munitions and the difference was described as a difference in terms rather than a difference in fact.

An important development was revised in Wall street when it became known that the great underwriting syndicate will not have to put up the half billion, or $750,000,000, or whatever the sum may be at one time. The syndicate members are to furnish their pro-rata in installments as they are required.

EXCUSES ACT ON IGNORANCE PLEA

Archibald Says Took Dumba Letter For Pass.

U. S. OFFICIALS QUIZ HIM

Is Asked Regarding Story of Gold Headed Cane—Declares Had No Intention of Breaking Neutrality Law.

New York, Sept. 21.—The American war correspondent, James F. J. Archibald, from whom the British military authorities took a letter written by Dr. Dumba, the Austrian ambassador to the United States to Baron Burian, the Austrian minister for foreign affairs, and in which there was outlined a plan to cripple the manufacturer of war munitions in this country, returned to New York on the steamer Rotterdam.

Later in the day Archibald gave out a statement, after a long consultation with his counsel, Frank J. Hogan, of Washington, in which he reiterated his declaration that he knew nothing of the nature of Dr. Dumba's communication.

As the boat came up the bay he was subjected to a brief inquiry by Chief William J. Flynn, of the secret service, on the matter of a gold headed cane. Among the reports that had been circulated concerning him since he was arrested and taken from the Rotterdam on her last trip to Europe at Fairmouth, was one that Archibald carried with him a gold headed cane which had been hollowed out and which was supposed to contain official information for the American government.

Archibald told Chief Flynn that the report was a myth, that he carried no such cane and that the only gifts, which he was taking to Europe were a small clock for Countess von Bernstorff and a bonbon dish for the Princess Hatzfeldt. He gave his word of honor that this was so. Whereupon the inquiry ended.

"Dr. Dumba's letter," said Archibald, "was given to me most openly at the steamer's gangplank just before sailing. Hundreds of persons were about and there was not the slightest suggestion of secrecy. Of its contents, I had absolutely no knowledge. I supposed, of course, that it simply referred to my work. I feel that the very open manner in which the letter was given me shows that Dr. Dumba had no intention of using me or my passport as a shield for the transmission of any improper letters.

"I did not consciously break either the spirit or the letter of my passport or of any law, but merely did what every traveler crossing the ocean does, by carrying notes or small packages as an accommodation to friends, just as I did when I returned from Germany last year, when I carried several letters and official dispatches to our state department for Ambassador Gerard and packages for Mrs. Gerard and others. Of course, in doing this for Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard I did it simply as a matter of friendship, precisely as I carried the letters in this case."

Archibald stated that before leaving for belligerent territory "to do field work with armies engaged in the war" he sought letters of introduction and recommendation.

"Feeling that there might be strong anti-American sentiment in Germany," Archibald declared, "and not knowing to what extent that might inconvenience those traveling with me, I asked Prince Hatzfeldt to prepare me an open letter, stating that I was friendly to their cause."

According to Archibald he suggested almost word for word, the letter Prince Hatzfeldt wrote, which, he said, he "intended to use only in the event we were subjected to any local hostile demonstration." Archibald asserted he did not know the contents of the other letters. Ambassador Dumba's letter, he said, was delivered to him at the steamer by the ambassador's secretary while the packages he carried for Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and Captain von Papen, German military attache at Washington, were delivered at his hotel.

British Say Fragment of Torpedo Was Found on Hesperian.

London, Sept. 21.—The official press bureau has issued a statement called forth by the German denial that any submarine was near the Hesperian when she was sunk, saying a fragment of a torpedo found on the vessel is in the possession of the admiralty. The statement is as follows:

"In reply to statements from Berlin denying that any submarine was operating in the neighborhood of the Hesperian on Sept. 4, undoubted proof exists that a German submarine in the locality in which the Hesperian was attacked and sunk other ships north and south of that spot on Sept. 4 and 5. The explosion was of the type caused by a torpedo, which is conclusively proved by a fragment found aboard the Hesperian before she was sunk, which is now in the possession of the admiralty."

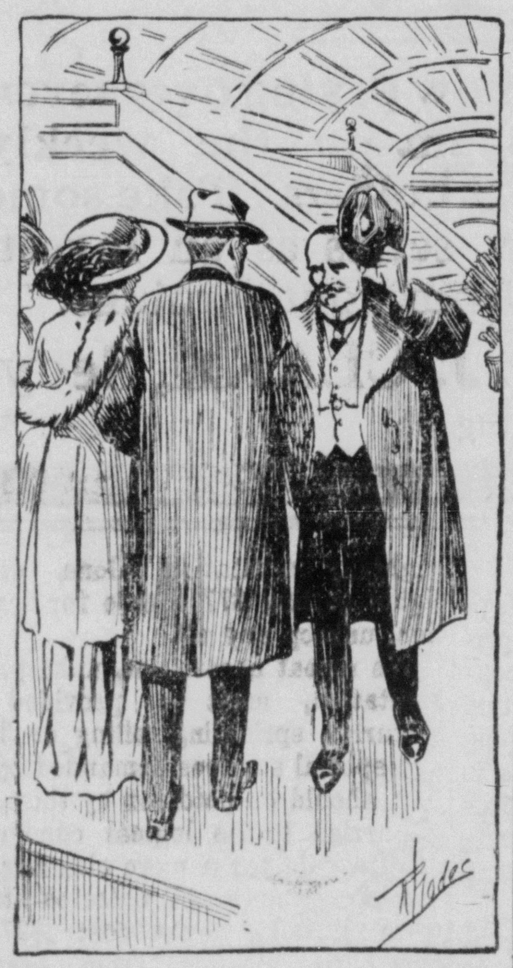
CHAPTER XII.

The Survival of the Fittest.

A short, thick old man, gray-bearded and puff-eyed and loaded with enormous jewels, met Gail, Lucile and Arly, Ted Teasdale and Rev. Smith Boyd, at the foot of the subway stairs, and introduced himself with smiling ease as Tim Corman, beaming with much pride in his widespread fame.

"Mr. Allison couldn't be here," explained Tim, leading the way to the brightly lighted private car. "We're to pick him up at Hoadley park. Miss Sargent, as hostess of the party, is to have charge of everything."



Introduced Himself With Smiling Ease as Tim Corman.

The side doors slid open as they approached, and they entered the carpeted and draped car, furnished with wicker chairs and a well-stocked buffet. In the forward compartment were three responsible-looking men and a motorman, and one of the responsibles, a fat gentleman who did not seem to care how his clothes looked, leaned into the parlor.

"All ready?" he inquired, with an air of concealing a secret impression that women had no business here.

Tim Corman, who had carefully seen to it that he had a seat between Gail and Arly, touched Gail on the glove.

"Ready, thank you," she replied, glancing brightly at the loosely arrayed fat man, and she could see that immediately a portion of that secret impression was removed.

With an easy glide, which increased with surprising rapidity into express speed, the car slid into the long, glistening tunnel, still moist with the odors of building.

Tim Corman had adroitly blocked Gail into a corner, and was holding her attention.

"Ed Allison is one of the smartest boys in New York," he enthusiastically declared. "Did you ever see anybody as busy as he is?"

"He seems to be a very energetic man," Gail assented, with a sudden remembrance of how busy Allison had always been.

"Gets anything he goes after," Tim informed her, and screwed one of his many-puffed eyes into a wink; at which significant action Gail looked out at the motorman. "Never tells his plans to anybody, nor what he wants. Just goes and gets it."

"That's a successful way, I should judge," she responded, now able to see the humor of Tim Corman's volunteer mission, but a red spot beginning to dawn, nevertheless, in either cheek.

"What I like about him is that he always wins," went on Tim. "Nobody in this town has ever passed him the prunes. Do you know what he did? He started with two miles of rust and four horse cars, and now he owns the whole works."

Gail knitted her brows. She had heard something of this marvelous tale before, and it had interested her. She had been groping for an explanation of Allison's tremendous force.

"That was a wonderful achievement. How did he accomplish it?"

"Made 'em get off and walk!" boasted Tim, with vast pride in the fact. "Any time Eddie run across a man that had a street car line, he choked it out of him. He's a wizard."

Tim's statement seemed to be somewhat clouded in metaphor, but Gail managed to gather that Allison had possibly used first-principle methods on his royal pathway to success.

"You mean that he drove them out of business?"

"Pushed 'em off!" chuckled Tim. "Anybody Allison likes is lucky," and with the friendly familiarity of an old man, Tim Corman patted Gail on the glove.

"It occurs to me that I'm neglecting my opportunities," observed Gail, rising. "I'm supposed to be running this car," and going to the glass door she looked into the motorman's compartment, which was large, and had seats in it, and all sorts of mysterious tools and appliances in the middle of the floor.

Tim Corman, as Allison's personal representative, was right on the spot.

"Come on out," he invited, and opened the door, whereupon the three responsible-looking men immediately arose.

"Show her how it works, Tom," he directed.

So it was that Edward E. Allison, standing quite alone on the platform of the Hoadley Park station, saw the approaching trial trip car stop, and run slowly, and run backwards, and dart forwards, and perform all sorts of experimental movements, before it rushed down to his platform, with a rosy-cheeked girl standing at the wheel, her brown eyes sparkling, her red lips parted in a smile of ecstatic happiness, her hat off and her waving brown hair flowing behind her in the sweep of the wind. To one side stood a highly pleased motorman, while a short, thick old man, and a careless fat man, and a man with a high forehead and one with a red mustache, all smiling indulgently, clogged the space in the rear.

Allison boarded the car, and greeted his guests, and came straight through to the motorman's cage, as Gail, in response to the clang of the bell, pulled the lever. She was just getting that easy starting glide, and she was filled with pride in the fact.

"You should not stand bareheaded in front of that window," greeted Allison, almost roughly; and he closed it.

Gail turned very sweetly to the motorman.

"Thank you," she said, and gave him the lever, then she walked back into the car. It had required some repression to avoid recognizing that dictatorial attitude, and Allison felt that she was rather distant, and wondered what was the matter; but he was a practical-minded person, and he felt that it would soon blow over.

"I've been neglecting this view," she observed, gazing out into the rapidly diminishing perspective, then she glanced up sidewise at the tall young rector, whose eyes were perfectly blue.

He answered something or other, and the conversation was so obviously a tete-a-tete that Allison remained behind. Tim looked up at Allison with a complacent grin, as the latter sat beside him.

"Well, Eddie, I put in a plug for you," stated Tim, with the air of one looking for approval.

"How's that?" inquired Allison, abstractedly.

"Boosted you to the girl. Say, she's a peach!"

Allison looked quickly back at the platform, and then frowned on his zealous friend Tim.

"What did you tell Miss Sargent about me?"

"Don't you worry, Eddie; it's all right," laughed Tim. "I hinted to her, so that she had to get it, that you're about the most eligible party in New York. I let her know that no man in this village has ever skinned you. She wanted to know how you made this big combination, and I told her you made 'em all get off; pushed 'em off the map. Take it from me, Eddie, after I got through, she knew where to find a happy home."

Allison's brows knitted in quick anger, and then suddenly he startled the subway with its first loud laugh. He understood now, or thought he did, Gail's distant attitude; but, knowing what was the matter, he could easily straighten it out.

"Thanks, Tim," he chuckled. "Let's talk business a minute. I had you hold up the Vedder court condemnation because I got a new idea last night. Those buildings are unsafe."

"Well, the building commissioners have to make a living," considered Tim.

"That's what I think," agreed Allison.

Tim Corman looked up at him shrewdly out of his puffy slits of eyes, for a moment, and considered.

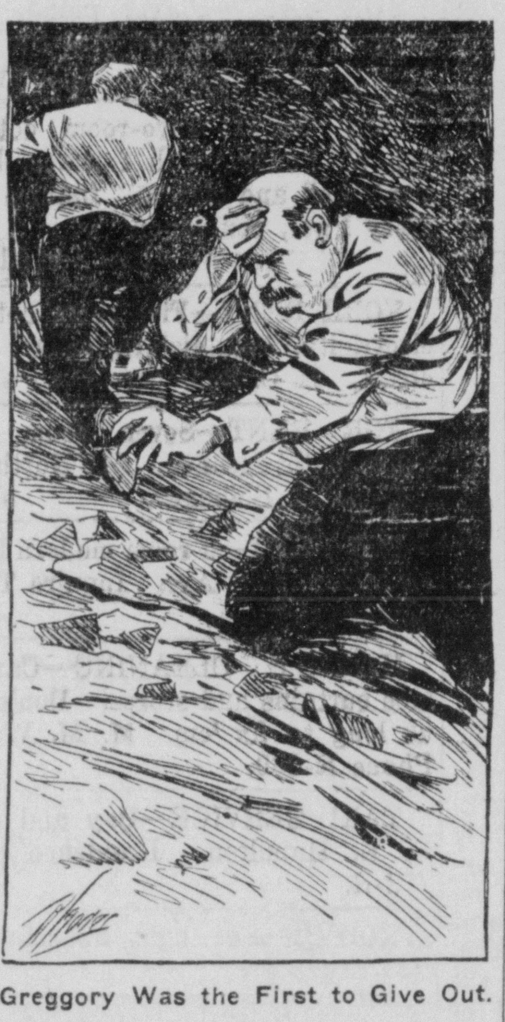
"I get you," he said, and the business talk being concluded, Allison went forward.

The girls and Ted came back presently, and, with their arrival, Gail brought Rev. Smith Boyd into the crowd, whereupon they resolved themselves into some appearance of sociability, and Allison, for the amusement of the company, slyly started old Tim Corman into a line of personal reminiscences, so replete in unconscious humor and so frank in unconscious disclosures of callous knavery, that the company needed no other entertainment.

Out in the open, where the sun paled the electric lights of the car into sickly yellow, up into the air, peering into third-story tenements and down narrow alleys, aflutter with countless flapping pieces of laundry work, then suddenly into the darkness of the tunnel again, then out, on the surface of country fields, and dreary winter landscape, to the terminal. It was more cozy in the tunnel, and they returned there for lunch.

Suddenly there came a dull, muffled report, like the distant firing of a cannon; then an interval of silence, an infinitesimal one, in which the car ran smoothly on, and, half rising, they looked at each other in startled questioning. Then, all at once, came a stupendous roar, as if the world had split asunder, a jolting and perking, a headlong stoppage, a clattering, and slapping and crashing and grinding, deafening in its volume, and with it all, darkness; blackness so intense that it seemed almost palpable to the touch!

There was a single shriek, and a nervous laugh verging on hysteria. The shriek was from Arly, and the laugh from Lucile. There was a cry from the forward end of the car, as of someone in pain. A man's yell of fright; Greggory the general manager. A strong hand clutched Gail's in the darkness, firm, reassuring. The rector.



Greggory Was the First to Give Out.

"Don't move!" It was the voice of Allison, crisp, harsh, commanding.

"Anybody hurt?" Tim Corman, the voice of age, but otherwise steady.

"It's me," called Tom, the motorman. "Head cut a little, arm bruised. Nothing bad."

"Gail?" Allison again.

"Yes." Clear voiced, with the courage which has no sex.

"Mrs. Teasdale? Mrs. Fosland? Ted? Doctor Boyd?" and so through the list. Everybody safe.

"It is an accidental blast," said the voice of Allison. He had figured that a concise statement of just what had happened might expedite organization. "We are below the Farmount ridge, over a hundred feet deep, and the tube has caved in on us. There must be no waste of exertion. Don't move until I find what electrical dangers there are."

A match flared up, and showed the pale face of the engineer bending over.

"No matches," ordered Allison. "We may need the oxygen."

He and the engineer made their way back into the parlor compartment. They took up the door of the motor well in the floor, and in a few minutes they replaced it. From the sounds they seemed remarkably clumsy.

"That much is lucky," commented Allison. "The next thing is to dig."

"In front or behind?" wondered the engineer.

"In front," decided Allison. "The explosion came from that direction, and has probably shaken down more of the soil there than behind, but it's solid clay in the rear, and further out."

Gail felt the rector's hand suddenly leave her own. It had been wonderfully comforting there in the dark; so firm and warm and steady. He had not talked much to her, just a few reassuring words, in that low, melodious voice, which thrilled her as did occasionally the touch of Allison's hand, as did the eyes of Dick Rodley. But she had received more strength from the voice of Allison. He was big, Allison, a power, a force, a spirit of command. She began, for the first time, to comprehend his magnitude.

"What have we to dig with?" The voice of Rev. Smith Boyd, and there was a note of eagerness in it.

"The benches up in front here," yelled McCarthy, and there was a ripping sound as he tore the seat from one of them.

"Pardon me." It was the voice of the rector, up in front.

"The balance of you sit down, and keep rested," ordered Allison, now also up in front. "McCarthy, Boyd and I go first."

The long struggle began. The girls grouped together in the back of the car, moving but very little, for there was much broken glass about. Up in front the three men could be heard making an opening into the debris through the forward windows. They talked a great deal, at first, strong, capable voices. They were interfering with each other, then helping, combining their strength to move heavy stones and the like, then they were silent, working independently, or in effective unison.

Tim Corman was the possessor of a phosphorescent-faced watch, with 22 jewels on the inside and a ruby on the winding stem, and he constituted himself timekeeper.

"Thirty minutes," he called out. "Its our shift."

The men crawled in from outside, but they stayed in the front compartment. The air was growing a trifle close, and they breathed heavily.

"Good-by, girl," called the gayly funereal voice of Ted Teasdale. "Husband is going to work."

Another interminable wait, while the air grew more stifling. There was no further levity after Lincoln and the motorman and McCarthy had come back; for the condition was becoming serious. Some air must undoubtedly be finding its way to the car through the loose debris, but the carbonic acid gas exhaled from a dozen pairs of lungs was beginning to pocket, and the opening ahead, though steadily pushing forward, displayed no signs of lessening solidity.

They established shorter shifts now; a quarter of an hour. The men came silently in and out, and as silently worked, and as silently rested, while the girls carried that heavy burden of women's hardest labor; waiting!

Greggory was the first to give out, then the injured motorman. When their turns came, they had not the strength nor the air in their lungs. Strong McCarthy was the next to join them.

The shifts had reduced to two, of two men each, by now; Ted and old Tim, and Allison and the rector; and these latter two worked double time. Their lips and their tongues were parched and cracking, and in their periods of rest they sat motionlessly facing each other, with a wheeze in the drawing of their breath. Their stentorian breathing could be heard from the forward end of their little tunnel clear back into the car, where the three girls were battling to preserve their senses against the poisonous gases which were now all that they had to breathe. Acting on the rector's advice, they had stood up in the car to escape the gradually rising level of the carbonic gas, stood, as the time progressed, with their mouths agape and their breasts heaving and sharp pains in their lungs at every breath. Arly dropped, silently crumpling to the floor; then, a few minutes later, Lucile, and, panic-stricken by the thought that they had gone under, Gail felt her own senses reeling, when suddenly, looking ahead through eyes which were staring, she saw a crack of blessed light!

There was a hoarse cry from ahead! The crack of light widened. Another one appeared, some four feet to the right of it, and Gail already fancied that she could feel a freshening of the air she breathed with such tearing pain. Against the light of the openings, two figures, the only two which were left to work, strove, at first with the slow, limp motions of exhaustion, and then with the renewed vigor of approaching triumph. She could distinguish them clearly now, by the light which streamed in, the stocky, strong figure of Allison and the tall, sinewy figure of the rector. They were working frantically, Allison with his coat off, and the rector with his coat and vest both removed, and one sleeve torn almost entirely from his shirt, revealing his swelling biceps, and a long, red scratch. Gail's senses were numbed, so that they were reduced to almost merely optical consciousness, so that she saw things photographically; but, even in her numbness, she realized that what she had thought a trace of weakness in the rector, was only the grace which had rounded his strength.

The two figures bent inward toward each other. There was a moment of mighty straining, and then the whole center between the two cracks rolled away. A huge boulder had barred the path, and its removal let down a rush of pure, fresh air from the ground above, let down, too, a flood of dazzling light; and in the curving, underrim of the opening, stood the two stalwart men who were the survival of the fittest! The mere instinct of self-preservation drove Gail forward, with a cry, toward the source of that life-giving air, and she scrambled through the window and ran toward the two men. They came hurriedly down to meet her, and each gave her a hand.

200,000 VICTIMS OF DRUGS IN U. S.

Report Says Number of Addicts Is Overestimated.

FIGURES BASED ON THE TAX

Enforcement of Harrison Anti-narcotic Law Has Been a Big Success. Most of Opium and Coca Imported In This Country Are Found to Be Used For Legitimate Purposes.

While holding it true that the amount of opium and coca consumed in this country annually is out of all proportions to the actual need for medicinal purposes, Martin I. Wilbert, technical assistant, division of pharmacology, hygienic laboratory of the United States public health service, is of the opinion that the number of drug fiends is overestimated. To correct existing impressions the health service has been looking into the subject.

Practically all the opium and coca used in this country are imported through legitimate channels, Mr. Wilbert finds. Because of the comparatively high import tax care is exercised to insure the reporting and recording of all the products, so that fairly accurate data are at the disposal of the investigator. The records show that for several years the total amount of such drugs imported has been fairly uniform and will aggregate an average of approximately 2,500,000,000 doses of opium, its derivatives and alkaloids and 325,000,000 doses of coca leaves and cocaine. These figures serve to definitely fix the amount of available material, and quite regardless of the proportion of the several drugs that may be used, legitimately or illegitimately, the sum total of illegitimate use cannot well exceed the sum total of the available material.

The investigator found a rather interesting source of information regarding the actual numbr and kind of addicts through the reports of the enforcement of the Tennessee anti-narcotic law of 1913. Lucian P. Brown, the state food and drugs commissioner of Tennessee, in a recent report says that after twelve months of operation there were registered in the state of Tennessee under the provisions of the anti-narcotic law 2,370 persons of all ages and color. These included 784, or 33.1 per cent, males, and 1,586, or 66.9 per cent, females.

Based on Tennessee Report.

"The average consumption per day of morphine addicts was 8.5 grains, or approximately 1,000 doses each month, or 12,000 doses a year," said Mr. Wilbert. "Tennessee contains slightly more than 2 per cent of the total population of the United States, and on the supposition that the same ratio of addicts and the amount of material consumed will hold good throughout the country, we would have a total of something more than 118,000 drug habitues, consuming approximately 1,416,000,000 average doses a year.

"Granting the somewhat improbable assertion that 90 per cent of the opium imported is used illegitimately, at the rate that it is said to be consumed in Tennessee, we could have as a maximum not more than 187,000 users of opium in the United States.

"In regard to the use of cocaine, a recent authority asserts that one ounce of cocaine is enough to keep fifty fiends thoroughly well doped for a week, or, in other words, that one ounce of cocaine is enough to keep one fiend thoroughly well doped for a year. Granting that all the available 150,000 ounces of cocaine were used illegitimately, there could be at this rate a total of 150,000 cocaine fiends in the United States."

POWDER FOR OUR SOLDIERS.

Not the Explosive Kind Nor Cosmetic Either, but For Feet.

In the current number of the Army and Navy Journal the following appears:

A favorable report has been made on some experiments which have been conducted in the Second division on what has been referred to as the soldier's vanity box. This new article of equipment is a pouch, designed by Captain James D. Taylor, Seventh infantry, intended to carry adhesive plaster and powder, not for the face, but for the feet. It is made of the same material as the haversack and is to be issued to duty sergeants and squad leaders, and is to be carried in a place provided for intrenching tools. It is eight and a half inches by four inches and is attached by glove fasteners like those on first aid packets.

The commanding officers who watched the experiment with it express the opinion that the new addition to the kit will be an important improvement to the equipment of the soldier, as it will make it possible for the duty sergeants and squad leaders to treat sore feet of the enlisted men without any unnecessary delay in the march. It has been found to be quite inconvenient to carry these packages of powder and adhesive plaster in the haversack.

Mayor's Veto.

The following is taken from Mayor Ross' veto of the street appropriation and is regarded by him as conclusive argument of his contention that the appropriation for sweeping and flushing the improved streets is too large as compared to that provided for repairing and maintaining the graveled streets, alleys and sewers:

We believe that by no rule of reason can an appropriation of $3,400 for four miles of improved streets be justified, as against $2,150 for all the remaining 28 miles. We cannot consent to four miles of improved streets getting one and one-half times as much as 28 miles of graveled streets, (improved $3,400, graveled $2,150). We cannot consent that four miles of improved streets shall be swept 313 times a year and washed over 100 times a year while the graveled streets for want of funds cannot be dragged once a year.

We all agree all the streets, brick, concrete and gravel, should be kept in a state of repair that would permit a team to pass over them safely with a reasonable load. That a pleasure vehicle, either a buggy or auto, could move over them at a reasonable speed without danger of breaking a spring or axle, with the resulting danger to life and limb.

A further argument, if there need be any, in favor of passably good streets all over a town is their necessity for fire protection. We appropriate $6,530 a year for fire hydrants, $3,810 for fire department, have this ready to serve organization on tap every day, 365 days a year, at an expense of over $10,000 a year, in order that fire may be reached in the least possible time, then through misappropriation of funds, giving certain sections luxuries, and denying seven-eighths of the city necessities, we retard their progress to the fire by streets full of ruts and washes and covered with sand and wornout road material. Incidentally, insurance rates are higher in Seymour than in most cities north of us. As we have a well equipped, efficient department is it not probable that the condition of our streets is the cause of it.

Briefly then, we all agree that all the streets, brick, concrete and gravel, should be kept in a passable condition, free from ruts, washes and wornout road material. These are necessities and must be provided for. It goes without saying, they should all be kept in a sanitary condition, not four miles spotless clean and absolutely dustless at a cost of $850 a mile, and twenty-eight miles not even in a condition to be oiled and made sanitary, on which it is proposed to expend less than $100 a mile. One-eighth of the streets getting $850 a mile for we mightsay sanitation alone, seven-eights getting $77 a mile for sanitation, unkeep and all.

We repeat necessities, unkeep, and sanitation, must be provided for. Luxuries, sprinkling, oiling or flushing, special services demanded by the few, should be paid for by them.

Carried to its logical conclusion, $850 a mile for a mere cleaning, assuming the entire 32 miles of streets were paved, would cost $27,200. Our entire receipts from taxes is about $36,000, this would leave less than $9,000 for all other expenses, streets, sewer and alley unkeep, police department, fire department, city officers, street lighting, fire plugs, park, library, bonds, and interest on bonds. The items of street lighting and fire hydrants alone amount to $15,732.

AN UNBURDENED WIFE

If the work that women do and the pains they suffer could be measured in figures, what a terrible array they would present! Through girlhood, wifehood and motherhood woman toils on, often suffering with backache, pains in side, headaches and nervousness which are tell-tale symptoms of organic derangements which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—made from roots and herbs—can undoubtedly correct. Women who suffer should not give up hope until they have given it a trial.
